My art is a practice and a journey.

Art is the way I connect with my outer and inner worlds. When I am making art, I'm immersed in the present. I notice the colors, negative space, textures, light, and contours surrounding me. I also notice my own feelings, body sensations, thoughts, and breathing.

My personal artwork crystallizes the feelings, places, events, and experiences that make an impression on me. Nature, organic shapes, and explorations of color and contrast are frequent themes in my artwork. Paths, cairns, and trails often appear in my work, consciously or subconsciously.
