

Thomas Michaud, Dean, School of Professional Studies, West Liberty University/Highlands Center, earned his M.A. and Ph.D. (Philosophy) from Marquette University and his B.A. (Honors) from Fairfield University (CT). He has taught at Wheeling Jesuit University, Marquette University, Mount St. Mary's University (MD), Siena University (NY), and Rockhurst University (Kansas City, MO). His international experience includes a Smith Fellowship for the University of Louvain, Belgium, a Senior Fulbright Lectureship for the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and the inaugural lecturer for the Rev. Jacek Woroneicki Memorial English Language Lectures in Philosophy, Catholic University of Lublin, Poland. Emphasizing his "common sense" approach, he has held seminars in leadership and ethics for many government groups, professional associations, non-profit organizations, and educational institutions (including Duke Univ.'s Fuqua School of Business MBA program). In addition, Tom has delivered extensive leadership and ethics education programs for Cabela's Distribution Center, Wheeling Pittsburgh Steel Corp., Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., Columbia Gulf Transmission Company, Columbia Natural Resources Corp., and Dermox Corp. He is the recipient of a WV Humanities Council Research Fellowship, former Director of the WV Business and Professional Ethics Project, a Kettering Foundation Contract Scholar, and a past-President of the Gabriel Marcel Society. He is also past-Vice President of the WV Humanities Council, and a site evaluator for the National Endowment for the Humanities. Besides writing a monthly business ethics column (Oct. '96 to June '06) for The State Journal (WV's leading business newspaper, www.statejournal.com), his course text, The Virtues of Business Ethics, was first published by Copley Custom Publishing Group in 2004 (expanded third edition, 2010). Dr. Michaud has published more than 30 papers, articles and reviews as well as five custom course texts and edited two journal anthologies.
